Hitch Hikers Attack Driver

Attacked by two hitch-hikers he had stopped to pick up early Monday morning, Jose Velardez, a plasterer's helper from Redondo Beach, was recuperating today from a one inch cut in the muscle of his left arm.

Velardez told police that he and his brother were approaching Crenshaw Blvd. on 182nd St. in his car when he saw the two hitch-hikers and stopped. They approached the car, and one of them lashed out with a knife, cutting Velardez on the arm.

He immediately put the car in gear and sped away. A Redondo Beach doctor treated the cut.

Velardez said the two men were attired in sun tan work clothes and spoke in the dialect of Old Mexico, leading him to believe that they might be Mexican Nationals.
